

The FCC shouldn't implement any proposal that would lesson Indinan's Telephone Privacy law protections. This law has greatly reduced the number of unsolicited, irritating, annoying, nuiance calls, including calls from thoes who might consider me an "existing customer". I used to receive as many as 6 or more calls a day which have now dropped to less than 1 a week. The quality of my family's home life has improved greatly since we placed ourselves on the "Do not call" list. Please, Don't weaken this law!
